

YOUTH SERVICES NARRATIVE

MARCH 2017

March was another bustling month here at the Quarryville Library!

I made a number of outreach appearances this month, including sharing Dr. Seuss as a Mystery Reader at Quarryville Elementary and a presentation at the Solanco SD's Title I program. I also did four library tours, for Pequea PreK and WSUCC PreK, wherein I gave out this year's OBEYC book Daniel Finds a Poem, funded by donors at last year's auction. I my usual outreach story time at Shining Stars in Quarryville, a book crate each for Noah's Ark and Willow Street Pre-K, and a classroom kit for the Linville Hill Fourth Grade class.

I'm discussing with Quarryville Head Start about adding them to my book crate drop-off list.

We had two Longwood Gardens programs this month; the third, a visit from the Delaware Art Museum, has been rescheduled to May. The Delaware Museum of Natural History brought in Justin Beaver (LOL!) and a ball python named Angelina to meet the kids! And I hosted our Rosie & Friends Story Time, which culminated in a cardboard city that the kids had a blast putting together.

Cheri and I are working together on the Summer Reading activities. All of the LSLC programs have been scheduled.

Website updates have remained steady. I'm keeping the new materials added as they arrive, and sharing the links on Facebook. We've added a document repository page, to gather together the forms we use daily, such as registration forms, passport sign-ins, etc.

Looking forward to April, I'm doing our special One Book Every Young Child program on Tues, April 25th, where I'll be giving out the last of the books purchased from last year's auction promotion.
